

GARDEN

Words and Music by Linda Arnold

Under a full moon one Summer's night
A man threw some seeds to the wind
Thinking they'd take flight
But the sweet earth opened
And tucked them in
And soon outside his window
There was a garden

He tends the garden with special care
Always making sure
There's love and sunshine there
He wants the roots to grow
Deep and strong
So the garden will be healthy
His whole life long
In the roots his love is flowing
Deep and strong
Deep and strong

Now he watches the garden
And he waits for Spring
Wondering what kind of blossoms
April will bring him
When the Spring is born
A father he will be
For the garden's growing
In his loving lady
There's a flower growing
In his lady
In his lady
