

THE WONDERFUL MACHINE

Words and music by Linda Arnold

Hello Larry Liver. "Hi."
Tell me what you do? "Okay."
"I'm the largest organ in the human body
And I purify you too!"

Hello Sarah Stomach. "Hi."
Tell me what you do? "Okay."
"When the food drops in, then I begin
A process called digestion."

Oh, what a wonderful machine
The human body can be
And each part has a special job
Inside of you and me

Hello Buster Brain. "Hi."
Tell me what you do? "Okay."
"I'm the grand computer of the nervous system
And I help you think things through."

Hello Sally Skeleton. "Hi."
Tell me what you do? "Okay."
"If you didn't have me to hold you up, you see You'd just be a bag of...jelly!"

Oh, what a wonderful machine
The human body can be
And each part has a special job
Inside of you and me

There's the eyebrows, the elbows, the kneecaps
The nose, and the nervous system too!
There's the tongue and the teeth
And the fingers and toes
And the list still isn't through
There's the circulatory system
And the respiratory system
And the skeletal system too!
There's the molecules and chemicals
The tissues and the cells
And the skin that holds it all in you!

Oh, what a wonderful machine
The human body can be
And each part has a special job
